Outline

- Background: WongAvery East Asia Collection UCSDL-CUL Partnership
- Introduction of UCSD EA Collections and Digital Collection Content Overview
- From Digitization to Discovery: roles, responsibilities, and workflows
- Cataloging, Metadata Creation
- Takeaways

Background

- A three-year collaborative project launched in June 2023 between the University of California San Diego Library and University of Cambridge Library
- To broaden the awareness, access, and use of the extensive East Asian collections held by the two institutions
- The sponsorship of the Avery-Tsui Foundation (Sally WongAvery and Natasha Wong)
- Digitization of Cambridge and UC San Diego's unique collections
- Librarian exchange and scholar exchange

Librarian exchange and scholar exchange

- Librarian exchange

Cambridge and UCSD teams with members of the Foundation during the Library exchange trip to San Diego in January 2024

- Scholar exchange

UCSD PhD student Emma Laube visiting Cambridge in March 2025

Cambridge PhD student Claire Ping visiting UCSD in July 2025

UCSD Digital Asset Management System (DAMs)

- Single data model for all objects
- Local schema drawn from and aligned with community schemas
 - Including, METS, MODS, Dublin Core, PREMIS Preservation Metadata Schema, Visual Resources Association (VRA), Encoded Archival Description (EAD), and others.
- Names, subjects, and places have a local unique identifier
 - Use controlled vocabularies whenever possible
 - Local authorities can also include name variants and links to external vocabulary records for the entity (LC, VIAF, FAST, Wikidata, etc.)
- Rely primarily on domain and subject experts for description
- Batch based ingest

Cataloging Digital Objects: Workflows

Model 1: MARC Cataloging to prepare metadata

- Collection: The Anti-Confucius Book Collection
- Also collections: Chinese Cultural Revolution Posters; North Korean Propaganda Posters

Model 2: Spreadsheet for metadata creation

- Collections: We Chinese in American Magazine, Carol Shankel Photos, Thea Bergren Photos

Model 3: Extraction and reuse of existing metadata

- Collection: Carol Pletcher Collection on the U.S. Women Scientists China Study Tour
Also Collection: Taiwanese American Archives' Photo Albums

Model 4: Utilize commercial tools for metadata creation

- Collections: Norman Spencer Photographs; Posters of the Chinese Independent Film Festivals; Committee of Concerned Asian Scholars Friendship Delegations; 1973 Guardian Tour of China

Model 1. MARC Cataloging to Prepare Metadata

Collection: The Anti-Confucius Book Collection

- Why MARC Cataloging? Library owned physical items; efficient mapping of metadata: MARC 21–MODS
- Controlled Vocabularies and Names: LC Subject headings, FAST headings, and LC authorities for names
- Data Linking: Persistent ID (Library system IDs and controlled vocabulary system IDs)

Model 4. Utilize Commercial Tools for Metadata Creation

Collection: 1973 Guardian Tour of China, Committee of Concerned Asian Scholars Friendship Delegations

- Why JSTOR Forum? Easy for donor and catalogers to add descriptions, efficient to build controlled list for adding metadata for each digital object; metadata and controlled terms can be extracted and reformatted for batch ingesting into the Library Digital Collection
- Data Linking: Persistent ID (Identifiers for controlled vocabularies and name authorities)

Takeaways: Considerations Before Cataloging

- Know your digital library system before cataloging
 - What kind of metadata does it support? Can it be customized?
 - Does it support multipart or multi-level objects? multilingual?
 - What are the options for supporting the controlled vocabularies?
 - What are the options for ingesting? Item, batch, or both?
- Know your collections before cataloging
 - Who owns the copyright and intellectual property? Open to public?
 - Who would be the potential users of the collection?
 - Format and condition of the analog originals before digitize
 - For tangible materials, whether to catalog before digitization?
 - What is the metadata schema? Are they compatible with your system? Can they be reused/mapped for ingesting into your system?

Takeaways: Considerations for Metadata Creation

Considerations of General Practices

- Level of resource description
- Standardization of controlled vocabularies and name access points
- Level of connections and relationship to build
 - One to one, or one to many
 - At the same level or multi-levels
- Documenting workflow decisions for consistency and accessibility

Considerations of Collections' Uniqueness

- Provide context of their historical, cultural, political and other background
- Provide details and/or circumstances about the objects (Who, What, Where, When)
- Understand and bring out Creator's or donor's perspective (Why)
- Enhance accessibility and inclusiveness with alternative text, transcripts, and/or translations

Chinese News

About this collection

Extent

670 digital objects.

Description

The Chinese News, the inaugural content for the Sally T. WongAvery collection, features a digital archive of the newspaper created from the print archive donated by Mr. Stanley Ting in partnership with UC San Diego alumna, lawyer, educator, and philanthropist Ms. Sally T. WongAvery.

The Chinese News, founded by Mr. Ting in 1983, distributed news and advertising to the Chinese-American population in San Diego until 1998. The weekly newspaper contains local and international news articles written in Chinese in addition to advertising in English and Chinese.

This collection was digitized with the generous support from the Avery-Tsui Foundation in honor of Sally T. WongAvery. We are grateful for the Foundation's support in preserving and providing access to historical materials on Chinese Studies.

Anti-Confucian Book Collection

About this collection

Extent

672 digital objects.

Description

The Anti-Confucius Book Collection consists of 747 titles donated by UCSD PhD alumnus Matthew Wills. They were largely political propagandas produced during 1960s-1970s, also known as the Cultural Revolution period in China. Many of the titles are compiled by local propaganda entities that discontinued after 1976. Materials in this collection reflect a 1970s campaign to reinforce the power of political elites and affirm the absolute correctness of Maoist socialism.

This collection was digitized with the generous support from the Avery-Tsui Foundation in honor of Sally T. WongAvery. We are grateful for the Foundation's support in preserving and providing access to historical materials on Chinese Studies.

Description

Alice Rothchild picking cucumbers with a local worker in the Wusan People's Commune's fields, Shenyang. Summer, 1973. "Feeling faintly absurd, I bent low in the fields of the Wusan People's Commune near Shenyang, my back aching.... Responding to our complaints, the guides had arranged for us to "engage in manual labor." Participating in ordinary peasant life was a welcome respite from endless jieshao, "brief introductions" and turned out to be one of the most memorable moments of my trip. But my intentions were better than my skills." --Chinoy, M. (1999). In China live: People power and the television revolution (pp. 43-44). Rowman & Littlefield Publishers.
